Point Standings

Dear Members,

I would like to thank you all for bearing with us during the changes made at the fairgrounds. We realize they were not ideal for horse shows. These changes were out of NMAWHC control and were made after we advertised the show, making a change of venue impossible. Again we thank you for your understanding.

I would also like to encourage you to purchase a raffle ticket for the scooter from any board member. This raffle is to raise money for the club and a scooter may come in handy if the Anna Bays series is moved to a different fairground.

Our awards banquet is set for November 18th, 2006 at Boone's Long Lake Inn. Please keep this in mind as the final points, nominations, rule proposals will be out earlier.

See you around the ring,

Jada Leek
NMAWHC President

Great job everyone! Keep up the good work! Start looking for little (*) next to your names after this set of points. That will mean you haven't gone in enough classes to qualify for a year-end award in that particular class. If there are any corrections or questions, please contact me by email: surly42@hotmail.com with a subject title of NMAWHC only please.

These points include Gladwin, and both days of the Anna Bays series, first weekend. Due to the closeness of the July shows, bear with while I get those, but they will be up soon! Thank you everyone and once again, fantastic job!

Sincerely,
Your Point Secretary,
Tallie #14

Western Pleasure: Make Room To Maneuver

World champion trainer Carol Metcalf discusses spacing along the rail in a pleasure class.

Here's the wrong way, the right way, and why the difference matters.

The wrong way: Anything less than one full horse-length is too close. At this distance, if the horse in front suddenly bobbles or slows, you'll have to check your horse to avoid running up on him. Or, if the front horse's stride is slower or shorter than your horse's, you'll be forced to pass him. Either of these outcomes is undesirable. The first, checking your horse, spoils the even striding and cadence that's so important in a pleasure class. The second, passing the other horse (or circling away from the rail to avoid him), is considered less-than-ideal presentation in today's rail classes. Even if you triple the following distance shown here-to almost one horse-length-it's still not enough to allow you the "room to maneuver" you need to avoid having to make subtle adjustments and/or evasive maneuvers.

The right way: At least two horse-lengths-and more, if you can manage it-is preferable for several reasons. First, it insulates you from the horse in front, so that any bobbles or speed changes he makes won't affect you. Second, it helps make any striding differences between your horse and the one in front irrelevant; in other words, even if the front horse covers ground a bit slower than your horse, you probably won't be creeping up on him before the call for a change in gait. And third, you're "highlighting" your horse for the judge by making it easy for him or her to evaluate your horse without distractions. Of course, the total number of horses in the class will affect how much distance you're able to maintain between you and other entries. But, in general, try for as much distance as reasonably possible.

Strategy: To maintain the distance between you and other entries, plan ahead. Don't concentrate only on your own horse, as many riders do. Instead, keep an eye out for what's going on around you. If you're starting to creep up on the horse directly in front of you, for example, plan to go deep into the next corner to maintain your ideal distance. Or if your horse is getting nervous about a horse coming up behind him, cut the next corner a bit to keep the horse in back from having to pass you.

Carol and Steve Metcalf train horses and riders for competition on the Quarter Horse circuit from their home base in Pilot Point, Texas. Carol has produced a number of world champions; in 1997, she rode Invest In Old Gold to the reserve championship in 2-year-old Western pleasure at the AQHA World Show.

Sand, Sand, Sand

Sand and sand colic continue to be a problem in Michigan. Here are some helpful hints to protect your horse from consuming too much sand.

Feed in bins off the ground
Do not over-graze your pastures.
Feed plenty of roughage before turning horses out into a dirt paddock.

Feed 2 cup of psyllium daily for the first 7 days of each month (winter too!)

Keep a free-choice mineral and white salt block accessible.
